How does electricity work in Hungary?

For example, high-voltage customers pay a fixed capacity charge and per-kWh energy charge; low-voltage (residential) customers pay per-kWh fees that cover local grid costs. On top of these, taxes and levies apply. Hungary imposes an excise duty on electricity (EUR 0.84/MWh, slightly below the EU minimum).

Is Hungary a net importer of electricity?

Despite strong domestic output, Hungary remains a net importer of power. In 2023 net imports equaled about 25% of consumption (importing ~20TWh and exporting ~9TWh against ~35TWh domestic output). Household and business electricity bills comprise several parts.

How do energy prices work in Hungary?

Concretely, the customer's energy price is set by hourly spot-market rates on HUPX (the Hungarian Power Exchange) - typically the day-ahead auction prices (EUR/MWh for each hour) and possibly intraday adjustments. This means the price paid for every kWh can rise or fall hourly (even going negative if wholesale prices do).

Does Hungary have a subsidized power system?

Hungary has long subsidized residential power: retail prices are now very low - over 60% below the EU average - due to the government's "rezsics&#246;k&#233;s" regime. Above the energy commodity charge, consumers pay network fees for transmission and distribution.
